Buyers' Market In Jones Books

Yet another explanation of Jonestown is being peddled —this one from attorney Mark Lane, who was present just before the destruction. Lane offered his book on the massacre to Pat O'Connor, editor in chief of Popular Library, for $100,000 against a manuscript within ten days. O'Connor's reply: "On the subject of Guyana, I'm only accepting calls from Milton, Dante, and Homer."

Photos: left, UPI; right, Wide World